

John's Journey - Day 44

May 14, 2009

Henrietta to Just East of Wichita Falls, TX

Last night there were a lot of mosquitoes around and it was a little warm in the wagon. I pulled out at 7:10.

I stopped at the Dairy Queen for breakfast. While I was eating, Brit had herself a snack as well. She found her way into my muffins. Needless to say there were none left, just a few crumbs. Oh well, I'm certain she enjoyed them.

I stopped by the dollar store & bought a small fan. This should help cool the wagon a little bit. While I was there, I also exchanged two pairs of jeans from 36 inch waist to 34. These fit even better.

I drove about 18 miles today. I'm parked on the east side of Wichita Falls by Wilson Overpass right along side of the road.

KFDX Channel 3 News came by this afternoon and did an interview. Also Time Recorder News came out and did an interview.

Johnny Stevens came by & talked a while & gave me 50 pounds of sweet feed.

Now Jack got a sore spot on his right front shoulder. I need to check the harness and see what may have caused that.

I think I'm out of the cold weather - & hopefully the rain is gone, so I put the sleeping bag away and pulled out the sheets.

Tomorrow I'm heading directly through Wichita Falls and hope to be in Holiday by tomorrow night. So far I've covered about 800 miles. Soon I'll be halfway to Phoenix.
