

John's Journey - Day 46

May 16, 2009

Holliday, TX

It sure did rain hard again last night. The wind also blew. The best thing about all this is that my wagon did not leak at all. I believe that I finally got it fixed. It was still raining when I got up to feed this morning. I'm not certain what I'm going to do quite yet. I'll have to decide based on the weather a little bit later.

It's about 8:00 and the wind is picking up again and starting to rain. I think I'll stay put today and rest a while.

Last night Jack was doing a lot of pawing so I put the hobbles on him. Also while I was talking with my sister Bev, I noticed that my right rear tire was coming apart and needed to be replaced so I'll have to get that fixed.

David Moss at the feed store gave me a tire & got it mounted for me. I sure did appreciate that.

It was a little bit cold last night. I think I put my sleeping bag away too soon so I'm going to put it back in the wagon.

About lunch time the weather began to clear up. It's still pretty windy though. I think that the wind will blow the rainy weather out of here to the East. The five day forecast is showing sunny and clear.

I noticed that Britt is favoring her left front leg. At first I thought it might have been a tick, so I got my knife out to check it out, but it wasn't a tick. If she is not better by the time I reach Seymour, I'll take her to a vet.

Quite a few people stopped by today & chatted. The rest is good. We will be heading out in the morning.
