

John's Journey - Day 9

April 9, 2009

Piggott, AR to Marmaduke, AR

Pulled out at 7:40 - Nice morning - not much happened today - pretty uneventful. I drove 24 miles today.

I talked with a reporter who interviewed me today. He'll be sending the article to my sister in Phoenix.

When I arrived in Marmaduke, I talked with two policemen who told me I could park at the Church of Christ about three miles out of town. I said okay, but when I got to the church it was all gravel - no grass at all, so I parked next door by a sign that said Park & Sell, so I parked.

According to the weather reports, there's a storm front heading in tonight. Tomorrow will be a short day since we are only about 8 miles from Paragould. I'll be staying at the fairgrounds just outside of town.

I'm looking forward to a steak dinner tomorrow night. The plan is to take off all day Saturday so we can all get some rest. I need to figure out a better arrangement for my computer. Trying to work a lap-top on my lap is a trick that I haven't mastered yet.
